Reasons for Allowance

10. Claims 1, 2 and 4-15 are allowed.

11. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance. The wake tower for a sports boat as claimed is not shown or suggested in the prior art because of the use of a wake tower that is comprised of an upwardly extending first base connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is connected to a first gunwale of said sports boat, an upwardly extending second base connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is connected to a second gunwale of said sports boat, and a generally U-shaped and upwardly extending structural assembly that is further comprised of a first curved side that is connected to said first base connector, a second curved side that is connected to said second base connector, and a bight portion that is connected to and spans said first and second curved sides, where each of said curved sides is further comprised of a side connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is pivotally connected to said base connector, and a pair of inwardly curved tubular members that are interconnected with said side connector.

12. The prior art as disclosed by Wiggen et al. (US 5,052,326) shows the use of a sports boat in combination with a wake tower, said wake tower being comprised of upwardly extending first and second base members that are attached to first and second gunwales of said boat, and a generally U-shaped, upwardly extending structural assembly having first and second curved sides that are respectively connected to said first and second base members, where each of said sides have an upper portion and a lower portion with a generally oval-shaped cross-section. Larson et al. (US 5,979,350) discloses a sports boat in combination with a wake tower, said wake tower being comprised of a generally U-shaped, upwardly extending structural assembly with first and second sides and a generally circular cross-section, and first and second connector segments that are pivotally connected to first and second base members in order to allow said structural assembly to pivot between a first upstanding position and a second position. However, none of the prior art cited shows or suggests the use of a wake tower in combination with a sports boat, said wake tower being comprised of an upwardly extending first base connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is connected to a first gunwale of said sports boat, an upwardly extending second base connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is connected to a second gunwale of said sports boat, and a generally U-shaped and upwardly extending structural assembly that is further comprised of a first curved side that is connected to said first base connector, a second curved side that is connected to said second base connector, and a bight portion that is connected to and spans said first and second curved sides, where each of said curved sides is further comprised of a side connector with first and second spaced apart bores that is pivotally connected to said base connector, and a pair of inwardly curved tubular members that are interconnected with said side connector.
